Little Satchmo*, acclaimed film on Louis Armstrong's secret daughter Makes NY Premiere in Satchmo's Former Neighborhood

[Queens, NY] - Louis Armstrong's only documented child, Sharon Preston-Folta comes forward in the new feature documentary Little Satchmo, after living closely in the shadows of her father, one of the most famous American icons of the 20th century, while keeping their relationship entirely invisible - until now.

The film, directed by John Alexander, is based on Preston-Folta's memoir of the same title, detailing how the product of a two-decade long love affair between Corona Queens based Satchmo and Harlem dancer Lucille 'Sweets' Preston, had no option but to harbor and conceal her identity for decades before making it public.

Little Satchmo made a sold out world premiere at Oscar-qualifying Thessaloniki Documentary Festival in Greece, followed by critically acclaimed North America debuts at the American Black Film Festival, AARP Movies for Grownups, and Toronto's Hot Docs' Doc Soup Film Series.

This year's Black History Month Film Festival announces Little Satchmo as an official selection, to premiere with a red-carpet event April 8th-9th at the King Manor Museum in downtown Jamaica, Queens, NY. The venue is located close to where Louis Armstrong resided with his wife, while Preston-Folta and her mother lived clandestinely in nearby Mount Vernon NY.
